

TrustWall brand system

Three fresh, honest directions for a testimonial tool whose entire promise is trust — built to look like nothing else in the category. Every color here is verified to WCAG AA, and in each system one interactive color does all the work: links and buttons are the same.

01 · POSITIONING

Why these look different on purpose

TrustWall sells trust: real consent, no fabrication, SEO-honest embeds. The brand has to feel credible at a glance — but the review/testimonial category is a monoculture of two colors. Standing out is itself a trust signal: it reads as a real, considered product rather than another clone.

The category we're escaping

 Testimonial.to violet	 Senja purple
 Trustpilot green	 TrustWall today indigo

Blue/indigo, violet/purple and review-green are the reflexive defaults. All three directions below deliberately avoid them.

Where we're playing instead

2026 brand research points to the open lane: warm earth tones (clay, terracotta, sandstone) that read as “trust, calmness, long-term value,” deep-ink contrast with a single confident accent, smoky jewel tones, and a serif revival that signals authority + warmth.

Three marks for “TrustWall”

The product keeps its name visible in-app, so each mark is a lockup (icon + wordmark) that doubles as the app logo. Any mark works with any palette — accents shown are illustrative.

1 • Keystone

A verified wall-tile: brick seams + a checkmark. The most literal and credibility-forward mark — “every brick is vouched for.”

2 • Quotemark

The universal symbol of a testimonial, built into a tile. Warm and human — “real words from real people.”

3 • Chorus

A wall of voices — stacked testimonial rows, the top one highlighted. The freshest and most abstract; scales down to a crisp favicon.

Three complete systems

Each is a full design system mapped onto your existing token names — so the whole app reskins by swapping one `@theme` block. Pick one to refine.

A • Testament

Fraunces + Inter

Editorial trust · premium, honest, established

Warm paper, deep ink, and a high-contrast serif headline — the look of a respected publication or a signed statement. Best when the audience values craft and credibility (coaches, premium course creators).

B · Proof

Space Grotesk + Inter

Crisp modern · confident, exact, high-contrast

Pure white, near-black, and a deep mulberry that reads as precision — with a citron spark for energy. A geometric grotesque and mono details give it a “receipts, not promises” feel. Best for a sharper, more product-led, tech-credible posture.

Bricolage + Manrope

Friendly humanist · warm, optimistic, human

Soft warm white, a friendly coral, and a plum second voice. Characterful display type keeps it approachable without sacrificing credibility. Best for a welcoming, creator-first, community feel.

One block to reskin the app

All three directions are pre-written in `brand/trustwall-design-tokens.css`. To apply one, copy its `@theme` block into `app/globals.css`, replacing the current “Indigo Trust” block, and add the matching font link. No component markup changes — every `bg-brand` / `text-ink` utility already points at these tokens.

```
/* app/globals.css – Direction A · Testament */
@theme {
  --color-canvas:      #FBF8F2;
  --color-ink:         #211C16;
  --color-brand:       #A8531B; /* links + buttons */
  --color-brand-strong: #844014;
  /* ...full block in trustwall-design-tokens.css */
}
```
